1. Lack of conceptual clarity:

If a student missed a few lectures on any subject, it may be possible that a few concepts were missed by the student. If the assignment revolves around that topic, then perhaps the student will need help for the completion of the assignment.

2. Beating the Competition Pressure

Sometimes a student has an element that is pressurized to get good marks even if he is not good in academics. These elements are possibly parents or professors, and in some cases, the student wants to compete with peer students of the batch, so they need help from outer sources.

3. Low Scores in Academics:

Low scores in previous grades not only generate an inferiority complex among students but also affect the basic understanding of advanced concepts and cause students to lose the basis of the next classes. It will also affect your future job interviews and concept-related work at your workplace.
